Transport Law Seminar

Transport Law Seminar

Marseille is the second largest city in France and the largest port for commerce, freight and cruise ships. The city is very dynamic these days and undergoing numerous transformations to entice visitors from all over the world. This makes it a perfect venue to talk about the legal impact of digitalisation in the transport and trade sector.

Autonomous vessels, autonomous trucks, cargo loading and unloading without the involvement of any human power, electronic release systems using blockchain technology – for some these appear to be part of a distant future, for others these are already happening today. But what are the implications of these developments? We will be addressing these topics and many more during the Seminar.

Speakers will include transport law experts from AIJA as well as business representatives working in the blockchain industry, in-house lawyers, master mariners, ship owners and many others.

The Organising Committee members, as it traditionally happens with any AIJA event, are simultaneously working hard on the social programme which will allow participants to indulge their senses with bits and pits of the marvellous Cote d'Azur. You definitely cannot miss this!
